John R. Cobb Travels 368.85 Miles As Hour Over Utah Salt Flats

EYSTON RUN ECLIPSED
Outbound Trip Clocked At 370.74 And Inward At 366.97

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Aug. 23—John R. Cobb, the London fur broker, today established a new world's land speed record when he sent his racing car at the terrific rate of 368.85 miles per hour.

Cobb eclipsed the record of 357.5 miles per hour set by his countryman, Captain George E. T. Eyston.

On his outbound run today, the new champion of speed rocketed through the electric eye mile at 370.75 miles per hour, bettering Captain Eyston's former outbound run of 356.44 miles per hour.

The inbound trip was clocked at 366.97 against the 358.57 made by Eyston on the inbound run last year.

To establish a record Cobb was required to make the two trips through the measured mile within one hour, the average time of the two runs being recognized as the official mark.

The speed made today by Cobb is a far cry from the 91.37 miles per hour average set in 1903 by Henry Ford.

The cost of the speed trials which resulted in the new record was estimated at $50,000, all of which was contributed by English and American sponsors.

Britain And France To Leave Missions In Soviet City

By H. R. Knickerbocker
PARIS, Aug. 23—Great Britain and France today decided to let their military missions remain in Moscow to see if the Russians will not perform on German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop a "double double-cross."

While the Nazi and Bolshevik foreign ministers in Moscow clasped hands to fix a new record of international cynicism, Europe shook off its initial bewilderment today and began to view the Red-Nazi pact as far less dangerous and far more hopeful than was at first believed.

It is now held possible here to consider its net good to the democracies, and particularly to the United States, may overbalance its evil.

Twenty-four hours of reflection on the part of the wisest, coolest observers in diplomatic and governmental quarters have given rise to the following list of virtues which may be discovered in an event which at first sight appeared unqualifiedly disastrous.

First, the Russo-German pact alters nothing because, no matter what sort of alliance she had signed with Britain and France, Russia never intended to do anything but wait until after the war exhausted both Germany and her enemies, then feed like a vulture on stricken Europe.

Poles Not Worried

The Poles, who are most interested as the appointed victim of Germany and who know Russia best, believe this implicitly and are not worried in the least.

Second, the apparently inevitable dissolution of the anti-commintern pact and the consequent isolation of Japan may prove, especially for the United States, fully worth the Russo-German pact. It is held here that it vastly lessens the possibility of the United States being dragged into war in the Far East because Japan may be counted hereafter to have her whole attention taken up along the Russian frontier.

Third, the democracies of Europe gain the moral advantage of no longer counting on a partner admittedly just as immoral as the enemy.

Fourth, the Communist parties throughout the world received a body blow from which likely none will recover.

Fifth, Fascist sympathizers likewise finally have learned the blood brotherhood and fundamental identity of Bolshevism and Fascism.

Sixth, Spain, which lost a million men in the struggle with Generalissimo Francisco Franco named anti-Bolshevik, now may definitely shift to the side of the democracies.

Seventh, French and British official and private public opinion desperately hopes that Nazi-Bolshevik cynicism may further enlist America's sympathies with the democratic powers.

JURORS ADVISE UNCLE SAM TO ATTACK GAMING

CHICAGO, Aug. 23—A recommendation that federal and local governments "crack down" on race horse betting was made today by a federal grand jury as it returned another indictment against Moses L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher.

The jury, which charged Annenberg and three associates with trying to influence a witness before it in the new indictment, recommends:

1. That congress enact a law to prohibit use of telegraph and telephone wires in illegal race horse betting.
2. Stricter enforcement of local gambling laws over the entire nation.
3. Revocations of the charters of more than two score racing information service companies operated by the Annenberg interests.

LUTSEN, Minn., Aug. 23—Airplanes and C. C. C. workers were to be called into a search today for Dr. Arthur H. Curtis, Chicago gynecologist, and his sister, Mrs. F. H. Walker, who disappeared in Minnesota's wild big game country last Monday.

COLUMBUS MAY CONTINUE FIGHT ON FUEL RATES

COLUMBUS, Aug. 23—The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. had the authority of the Public Utilities Commission today to immediately bill its consumers at the new 56.22 cent rate. Permission to charge the new gas rate was given by Commissioners Roy D. Williams and Dennis Dunlavy as a two-day controversy over the effective date ended.

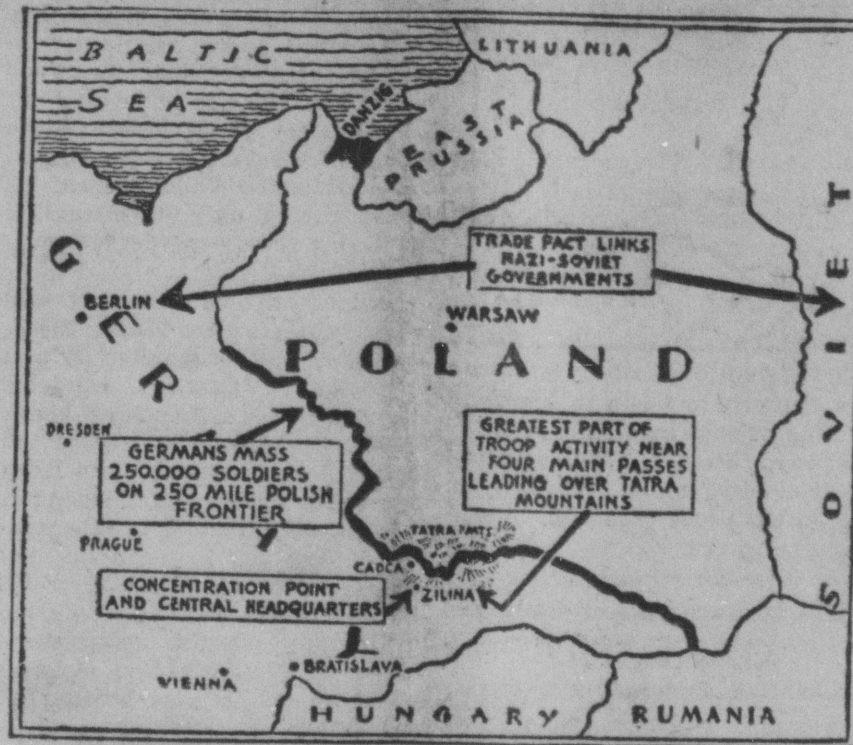

The third member of the commission, George McConaughy, failed to concur with the other two commissioners in allowing the gas company the increased rate.

The company was given 30 days, however, in which to appeal the decision of the commission majority. The city of Columbus may ask for a rehearing on the decision and, if turned down by the commission, may go to the state supreme court, James W. Huffman, special counsel for the city, said.

OHIOAN FLAYS SCOUT 'SHORTS' 'STAGGER' PLAN DRAW COMMENT FOR SPORTSMEN FROM GOVERNOR

BOWLING GREEN, Aug. 23—Possibility of the bird population being wiped out was seen today by Dewey Hendricks, head of the Plain Township Game Protective Association, because of the conservation department's sanction of a "staggered" hunting season.

Taking exception to a statement made by H. A. Ryder, assistant conservation commissioner, in which he said that Wood county associations were against the "staggered" season because it would cut down their revenues, Hendricks said:

"The farmer objects to the week-earlier date of Nov. 8 because it means the harvest season will run into hunting interference or the crops will have to be harvested before they are ready for the bins."

"Under the new plan of hunting on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with Sunday, Monday and Tuesday as rest days, the birds will be coming out of cover about the time the next Wednesday of hunting arrives and there will be far more kills through a season than ever before."

Hendricks added that there is no fear of loss of revenue or any selfish desire on the part of the farmer.

RIBBENTROP ARRIVES IN MOSCOW

Troop Movements Continue In Vicinity Of Border; Reserves Summoned To Frontier; Papers Lead Attack

LONDON, Aug. 23—Britain girded for war today while her diplomats strove at the eleventh-hour to dissuade Chancellor Hitler from precipitating a conflict.

British Ambassador to Berlin Sir Neville Henderson arrived by plane at Berchtesgaden for an interview with Hitler during which the Briton was authoritatively reported to have communicated to the chancellor the determination of his country and France to abide by pledges of military aid to Poland despite Soviet desertion of the Franco-British camp.

King George VI, meanwhile, was due in London tomorrow to summon the privy council and to receive Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain for an extensive examination of the latest developments in the crisis.

BERLIN, Aug. 23—With the Reich's roads and railways continually jammed with troops and equipment, the German general staff kept the lights burning brightly all night in Berlin's famous Bendler street, indicating that everything today was set for the word "go."

Prominent Nazi quarters expressed the opinion that "five days from this moment things will start" and Poland will be liquidated.

The general opinion is that Poland will be overwhelmed in a series of lightning-like blows in case she resists without compromise.

Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, now in Moscow, will try to persuade the Soviet government to agree to Poland's partitioning, it was thought likely. Von Ribbentrop's return is expected late tomorrow. He will immediately proceed to Berchtesgaden to see Chancellor Hitler.

The Fuehrer himself is keeping in special telephonic contact with the delegates in Moscow, also with Premier Mussolini in Italy.

Diplomatic quarters expressed the gloomiest feelings today, although hope was still held that a solution of the German-Polish question would come at the eleventh hour.

Germans are generally calm, although anxious.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—Three armed men today escaped with uncut diamonds valued at $25,000 after herding several employees into an inner room of the offices of Cardel and Scheffer, diamond dealers, on the eighth floor of a Fifth avenue office building.

WARSAW READY TO TURN DOWN GERMAN DECREE

Ultimatum Expected Soon To Give Up Danzig; Poles To Fight

ALLIES' PLEDGES NOTED

Military Strength On Nazi Borders Increased As Crisis Nears

WARSAW, Aug. 23—Polish semi-official quarters today anticipated a possible German ultimatum within the next few days with the scornful advance announcement that it would be rejected.

Satisfaction over Anglo-French reaffirmation of their pledges to Warsaw was expressed on all sides, and it was believed that formal signature of an alliance with the western democracies to strengthen mutual promises would be accelerated.

In the opinion of Poles, who are maintaining an attitude of firm calmness, Berlin's announcement of negotiations for a non-aggression pact with Moscow constitutes merely a tactical move, and the same setup for a possible war prevails now as before Chancellor Hitler's diplomatic stroke.

The gigantic military strength of Poland along Germany's frontiers meanwhile is being increased, while on all sides it is stated that Poland is ready to fight for Danzig and the Corridor.

DAMAGE ACTION TO REACH JURY EARLY THURSDAY

Questioning of witnesses in the suit of Melvin McIntosh, 1132 S. Champion avenue, Columbus, against Harold and D. A. Marshall, Stoutsville Route 1, was expected to be completed Thursday morning.

The hearing on the suit filed against the county commissioners, asking a writ of mandamus requiring the board to repair a bridge damaged by the flash flood on July 4, will be postponed Thursday until a later date.

The case was filed by a group of property owners on the "Old Road" extending from Route 22 in Washington township. The petition contends that the road is public. Commissioners refused to repair the bridge contending the road was maintained as a private one.

WARSAW, Aug. 23—Polish semi-official quarters today anticipated a possible German ultimatum within the next few days with the scornful advance announcement that it would be rejected.

Satisfaction over Anglo-French reaffirmation of their pledges to Warsaw was expressed on all sides, and it was believed that formal signature of an alliance with the western democracies to strengthen mutual promises would be accelerated.

In the opinion of Poles, who are maintaining an attitude of firm calmness, Berlin's announcement of negotiations for a non-aggression pact with Moscow constitutes merely a tactical move, and the same setup for a possible war prevails now as before Chancellor Hitler's diplomatic stroke.

The gigantic military strength of Poland along Germany's frontiers meanwhile is being increased, while on all sides it is restated that Poland is ready to fight for Danzig and the Corridor.

DAMAGE ACTION TO REACH JURY EARLY THURSDAY

Questioning of witnesses in the suit of Melvin McIntosh, 1132 S. Champion avenue, Columbus, against Harold and D. A. Marshall, Scoutsville Route 1, was expected to be completed Thursday morning.

The case is based on an auto and truck collision Sept. 1, 1938 on Route 56 about a half mile south-east of Circleville. Mr. McIntosh asks $2,500. D. A. Marshall, in a cross petition, seeks $200.

The hearing on the suit filed against the county commissioners, asking a writ of mandamus requiring the board to repair a bridge damaged by the flash flood on July 4, will be postponed Thursday until a later date.

The case was filed by a group of property owners on the "Old Road" extending from Route 22 in Washington township. The petition contends that the road is public. Commissioners refused to repair the bridge contending the road was maintained as a private one.

GEORGE SMITH, VETERAN OF SPANISH WAR, DIES

He was a veteran of Company M, Fourth Regiment, of the Ohio Volunteer Infantry. Mr. Smith was born March 2, 1864.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Nettie Morris, who resides at the home in Barnes avenue.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. in the Rinehart funeral home with the Rev. Charles Essick officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

planned when he left to stay only that long.

Reliable quarters said then Hitler may issue a final warning or an ultimatum, probably tomorrow, setting a deadline for Poland to bow to Germany's demands regarding the Polish Corridor, Danzig, and minority Germans in Poland.

Hitler's demands on Poland, contrary to some foreign reports, have not yet been delivered to Warsaw.

High quarters in Germany take it for granted that by Tannenberg Day "the whole affair must be taken care of completely—all will be over."

Troops Continue to Move

Meanwhile "under-cover" mobilization, involving the calling up of reserves and the dispatch of troops to Poland's frontiers is continuing without interruption.

Morning papers today continued their attacks on Poland, while maintaining silence on the new French and British pledges of assistance to their ally on the East.

Fresh accusations of the maltreatment of German minorities in Poland were published.

Heavy Polish troop concentrations, especially around Bromberg, in the Polish Corridor, were reported.

Poles, according to German advice, manned fortifications opposite the German border in the vicinity of Beuthen, and are constructing new machine gun emplacements.

To Blast Locks, Dams

Polish engineers, it was asserted, are preparing to blow up locks in the Netze river and dams in Upper Silesia.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—In a dramatic move contrasting with Prime Minister Chamberlain's own flight last September, Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador in Berlin, today was sent to Berchtesgaden by air to warn Chancellor Hitler in person of Britain's firm attitude.

Sir Neville will lay directly before Der Fuehrer, it was understood, a message from Chamberlain along the lines of yesterday's British cabinet declaration. It makes clear to Germany that the prospective Russo-German non-aggression pact in no way alters Britain's pledges to fight for Poland's independence.

DANZIG, Aug. 23.—Tension in the free city was on the increase today, with military preparations in evidence in Danzig as well as on the Polish and East Prussian frontiers.

Danzig and Reich German leaders visiting here repeat their charges of Polish "aggression," and predict the early return of the city to Germany—but none seems well-enough informed to name the day.

Trucks and buses have been distributed through Danzig in preparation for quick mobilization. As a result, construction of new defense works at nearby Zoppot has been held up. Great military activity is reported from East Prussia.

Germany "established" a "legal basis" for taking over Danzig at a meeting of the German juridical association at Zoppot. Dr. Hans Frank, German minister without portfolio and head of the organization, held that the creation of the free state "was an enforced dictate and therefore without legal foundation."

Dr. Frank and Albert Forster, Danzig Nazi leader, spoke at a rally at Zoppot last night, reaffirming that Germany would give the full support of its might to Danzig's "rights."

Compliments to Yugoslavia for refusing to let the dictators use her resources for war and pay for Hitler's I. O. U.'s.

cooperating with prisoners in escapes. He added that he had authorized a shifting of the guard force to prevent further breaks. An additional six have been ordered put on night duty.

T. J. Price, a guard officer, has been named acting assistant superintendent by Jenkins. Sherwood had no comment to make on that.

Latest to escape were Steve Bolen, 27, sentenced from Hamilton county and Louis Kuhen, 26, of Belmont county, both serving life terms for second degree murder.

Four others who escaped several hours before were Claude Blood, 37, slayer of a Lodi peace officer; Raymond McMahon, 23, convicted of robbing a Mt. Blanchard bank; Frank Gearholt, 31, sentenced from Toledo for larceny and Riley Lipps, 25 convicted of burglary.

Sherwood's promise to "clean-up" was interpreted to mean he may ask for a resignation. He also said he would name a new Ohio penitentiary warden to succeed James C. Woodward, who resigned during a civil service hearing on removal charges.

Talks With Bricker

The welfare chief conferred yesterday afternoon with Governor Bricker about the prison and the London institution. Neither would reveal, however, the outcome of their discussion.

Bewildered officers took him to a city jail where Sisko confessed that the sight of a prowling car gave him the jitters. He has no guilty conscience either.

Four others, all prominent in business and political circles, were named with Shushan, for whom the $4,000,000 New Orleans airport is named. Specifically, the indictment charged that Shushan fraudulently obtained more than $100,000 in a deal involving a bond refunding plan for the Levee board.

One especially effective method of eradicating plantain is to fill an oil can with carbolic acid. Then stab each plant in its center with a sharp stick, and squirt a few drops of the acid into the bruised center of the plant.

Iron sulphate is also an effective chemical ally in the war on plantains. It should be used at the rate of two pounds to one gallon of water. This mixture can be sprinkled on the weeds with a watering can or power sprayer. Sometimes a second application is necessary. If so, apply a few weeks after the first dose.

GARDEN HINTS

Late August is a good time for setting out broad-leaved as well as needle-bearing evergreens. At this season they have completed their above-ground growth for the year and are starting to make fresh roots. Thus they are in the best possible condition for establishing themselves in their new locations.

Old strawberry beds are best torn up and new beds started in fresh soil by planting pot-grown runners at this season. These plants will require extra maintenance if the weather is dry.

Flower seeds, such as pansies, forget-me-nots, English daisies and violas, may also be sown now for flowering with next Spring's bulbs.

Roses should be lightly cultivated and kept well-watered and of course, dusted or sprayed frequently, but not fertilized any more this season.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Eradicating Plantain

To maintain a good lawn one must wage an unrelenting war against weeds. To wage this war single handed, that is, by digging up the weeds by hand, means an almost endless campaign. Modern chemical warfare can be applied to the weeds in lawns and makes the task of eradicating them much more simple.

Common plantain weed, shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is found in most lawns. It is a perennial and seeds itself from July to October. Plantain is especially destructive to grass; for its basal leaves are wide and as they spread out they shade and then kill out the grass beneath them.

One especially effective method of eradicating plantain is to fill an oil can with carbolic acid. Then stab each plant in its center with a sharp stick, and squirt a few drops of the acid into the bruised center of the plant.

Iron sulphate is also an effective chemical ally in the war on plantains. It should be used at the rate of two pounds to one gallon of water. ## WELFARE CHIEF ENDS PROBE AT LONDON PRISON

Jenkins' Request For Six Month Leave Because Of Illness May Be Denied

cooperating with prisoners in escapes. He added that he had authorized a shifting of the guard force to prevent further breaks. An additional six have been ordered put on night duty.

T. J. Price, a guard officer, has been named acting assistant superintendent by Jenkins. Sherwood had no comment to make on that. Latest to escape were Steve Bolen, 27, sentenced from Hamilton county and Louis Kuhlen, 26, of Belmont county, both serving life terms for second degree murder.

Four others who escaped several hours before were Claude Blood, 37, slayer of a Lodi peace officer; Raymond McMahon, 23, convicted of robbing a Mt. Blanchard bank; Frank Gearholt, 31, sentenced from Toledo for larceny and Riley Lipps, 25, convicted of burglary. Sherwood's promise to "clean-up" was interpreted to mean he may ask for a resignation. He also said he would name a new Ohio penitentiary warden to succeed James C. Woodward, who resigned during a civil service hearing on removal charges.

Talks With Bricker
The welfare chief conferred yesterday afternoon with Governor Bricker about the prison and the London institution. Neither would reveal, however, the outcome of their discussion.

FEARS POLICE CARS

ASTORIA, Ore., — Some people are afraid of the dark and others are afraid of high places, but Elnor Sinko, 52, has polycarpophobia. When a police patrol car stopped on the dock near Sinko, the frightened man dashed toward the waterfront and jumped off. Bewildered officers took him to a city jail where Sinko confessed that the sight of a prowler car gave him the jitters. He has no guilty conscience either.

Huey's Abe Cited

ONCE a powerful Huey Long lieutenant, Abraham L. Shushan, above, of New Orleans, has been indicted by a Louisiana federal grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud. Four others, all prominent in business and political circles, were named with Shushan, for whom the $4,000,000 New Orleans airport is named. Specifically, the indictment charged that Shushan fraudulently obtained more than $100,000 in a deal involving a bond refunding plan for the Levee board.

Today's Fashion

RUSH THE season through the medium of a new Autumn hat. Here are two smart numbers. Top, a felt with the high crown so manipulated that the wide satin ribbon band falls in soft loops in back. Tipped far forward on the head. A tricky little model is the second hat, a casual affair fashioned of dark grey felt with a high crown and tiny upturned brim. A dark red feather quill, dark red velvet narrow band and gray stitching around the crown make up the trimming.

Eradicating Plantain

To maintain a good lawn one must wage an unrelenting war against weeds. To wage this war single handed, that is, by digging up the weeds by hand, means an almost endless campaign. Modern chemical warfare can be applied to the weeds in lawns and makes the task of eradicating them much more simple.

Common plantain weed, shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is found in most lawns. It is a perennial and seeds itself from July to October. Plantain is especially destructive to grass; for its basal leaves are wide and as they spread out they shade and then kill out the grass beneath them.

One especially effective method of eradicating plantain is to fill an oil can with carbolic acid. Then stab each plant in its center with a sharp stick, and squirt a few drops of the acid into the bruised center of the plant.

Iron sulphate is also an effective chemical ally in the war on plantains. It should be used at the rate of two pounds to one gallon of water. This mixture can be sprinkled on the weeds with a watering can or power sprayer. Sometimes a second application is necessary. If so, apply a few weeks after the first dose.

GARDEN HINTS

Late August is a good time for setting out broad-leaved as well as needle-bearing evergreens. At this season they have completed their above-ground growth for the year and are starting to make fresh roots. Thus they are in the best possible condition for establishing themselves in their new locations.

Old strawberry beds are best torn up and new beds started in fresh soil by planting pot-grown runners at this season. These plants will require extra maintenance if the weather is dry.

Flower seeds, such as pansies, forget-me-nots, English daisies and violas, may also be sown now for flowering with next Spring's bulbs.

Roses should be lightly cultivated and kept well-watered and of course, dusted or sprayed frequently, but not fertilized any more this season.

7,000 HEADS OF STOCK BOOKED FOR STATE FAIR

Exposition To Maintain Its Great Record For Show Of Fine Animals

HUGE PREMIUMS LISTED

Cattle, Draft Horses, Sheep And Swine Vie For Cash Totalling $57,000

COLUMBUS, Aug. 23 — Ohio, long without a peer in the promotion of livestock expositions, will be enabled to add another "blue ribbon" to its enviable record, during the 89th annual Ohio State Fair, Aug. 26 to Sept. 1, when it will play host to approximately 7,000 heads of animals. It will be the largest livestock show ever held anywhere in Ohio.

Records in the department show that the previous high record of 6,237 head, was established in 1938.

Breeders, representing practically every state in the Union as well as Canada, praise the Ohio exposition as the greatest in which they participate, pointing out that every conceivable precaution is taken to protect their herds as well as the total purses which are offered in this division, approximating $57,000.

This year, with some 200 head of Brown Swiss cattle entered, the Buckeye state will provide the largest show in its history for this breed, entries falling far short of this mark in other years.

In the car-lots division of cattle, there are 550 heads entered this year in comparison with 290 a year ago.

Reason why breeders are attracted to the Ohio State Fair can best be answered by the prizes offered in the division which make up the livestock show: cattle, $26, 218.61; draft horses, $10,399; sheep, $10,037.50 and swine, $9,988.

For more than a week trucks loaded with hay, straw, corn, oats and other grains have been moved onto the grounds and a corps of workmen engaged in bedding down the stalls to receive the animals immediately upon their arrival on the grounds.

After the show comes to a close many breeders will move on to further contests in "other state fairs, but when next year's premium lists are off the press, they will be back for their big effort in the toughest competition imaginable.

As war clouds gather again over uneasy Europe these six men stand ready to lead their nations' armies in the conflict—if it comes. Should a general European war break out, most likely some of these men, outstanding soldiers themselves, would find themselves pitted against the military skill of the others. Two are the military leaders of the Rome-Berlin axis powers—Colonel-General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, and General Alberto Pariani, Italian chief of staff. Directing military operations on the other side of a European war most probably would be found

Major General Viscount Gort, chief of the British imperial staff; General Marie Gustave Gamelin, French chief of staff; Inspector-General Edward Smigly-Rydz, chief officer of the Polish army, with General Boris Shaposhnikov, chief of staff of the Russian army, uncertain.

It is easy enough for one member of most any family to have a certain date for a birthday, and that is not anything unusual, but when three members of the same tribe have chosen the same day of the month on which to be born, that's something different and news. Esther Wallen at Hook's Corner, according to her own statement, will be old enough to cast a legal ballot on and after this next September 6th, and her brother Leonard, in Duval territory, on this same date will be even 28. And the least one, a little niece of the two mentioned, Mary Lou Slick, will be having her first birthday on this same day. And then's when a real birthday party is to be held, so they told us.

The old black bee of years ago is a thing of the past today, giving away to gentle Italian breed comparatively easy to manage, he told us.

adjournment rush was the introduction of a bill that may be one of the hottest issues of next year's session. Introduced by Representative Lee E. Gordon Dean, crack former press chief of the Justice Department, recently transferred to the Anti-Trust Division, is burning the midnight oil preparing the Government's appeal from the decision throwing out the indictments against the American Medical Association. . . . ### RUNNER-UPS

Representative Gene Cox of Georgia, who hates minimum wages but has a $56,300 "take" for himself and nine relatives, is the undisputed czar of congressional nepotists, but he has two ambitious rivals in the Senate.

Running close behind for high nepotism "honors" are "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina, who also opposes 30 cents an hour for mill workers; and Burton K. Wheeler, Montana's veteran White House aspirant.

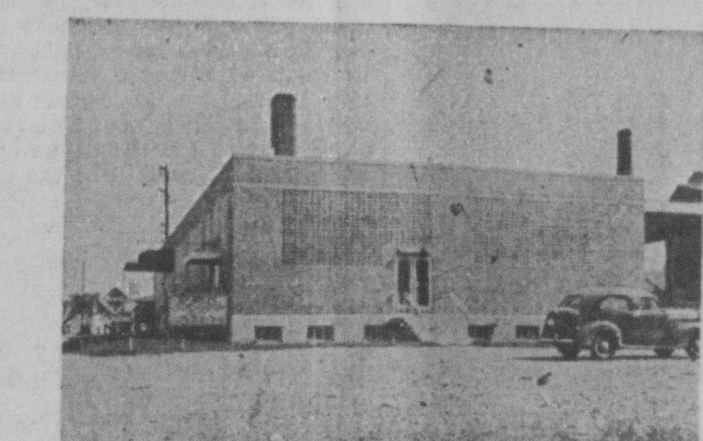

In number of jobs, Smith is right on Cox's heels, though his total "take" is lower. Wheeler has "cropped behind in pap items, but all of his jobs pay well and run up an impressive total in dollars.

IOWA TANGLE

One of the first jobs awaiting the President when he returns to his desk is unraveling an Iowa political tangle that threatens to tie the Democratic leaders of the State into knots. The politicians are split into three warring factions and unless Roosevelt takes a firm hand a big explosion is inevitable.

Claiming White House blessing are Hubert Utterbach, National Committeeman, and E. H. Birmingham, State Chairman, who

the United Brethren church, is attending conference at Lancaster this week. It is a guess, a sure we think that he will be returned to this charge.

Tabernacle Almost Filled For Tuesday Evening Program

Large crowds are attending the daily sessions of the campmeeting of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union of Ohio at the Mount of Praise, E. Ohio street.

The huge tabernacle, with a seating capacity of about 3,000 persons, was practically filled for the public preaching service Tuesday night. The service was conducted by the Rev. Paul Rees, evangelist, of Detroit. Special music was presented by quartets from the Cincinnati Bible school and the Cleveland Bible Institute.

The Rev. R. G. Flexon, of Bethlehem, Pa., will preach at the service at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday. The Rev. Mr. Rees will preach again on Thursday night. There will be special music for all services.

One of the highlights of the weekly program will be Saturday, observed as Missionary Day. A special program by missionaries will be held at 2 p. m.

Another new feature of the services this year is the daily Bible school being conducted from 7 to 8 a. m. by the Rev. T. M. Anderson, evangelist, of Wilmore, Ky. Preaching services are held daily at 11 a. m., 2:30 and 8:15 p. m. Children's meetings are held at 1 p. m. and meetings for the young folk at 6 p. m.

Camp officials estimate about 1,500 persons are living on the grounds this year in the dormitories, cottages, and in tents and trailers.

Others unable to obtain rooms in the campground buildings are staying in homes throughout the city.

The camp closes Sunday.

STATE'S RULING HITS MARSHALS IN OHIO TOWNS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 23—Town marshals may not go outside village limits to find traffic law violators without a warrant, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert held today in an opinion to Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the state highway patrol.

Black said in his request for the opinion that the practice exists in certain parts of the state. Village marshals make deliberate patrols outside their villages for the purpose of making arrests and taking the offenders to any court in the county they desire, Black said.

Marshals can, however, arrest traffic violators within the village limits and take them before a mayor of any other village in the same county, Herbert said.

HUGE PREMIUMS LISTED

Cattle, Draft Horses, Sheep And Swine Vie For Cash Totalling $57,000

COLUMBUS, Aug. 23 — Ohio, long without a peer in the promotion of livestock exhibitions, will be enabled to add another "blue ribbon" to its enviable record, during the 89th annual Ohio State Fair, Aug. 26 to Sept. 1, when it will play host to approximately 7,000 heads of animals. It will be the largest livestock show ever held anywhere in Ohio.

Records in the department show that the previous high record of 6,237 head, was established in 1938.

Breeders, representing practically every state in the Union as well as Canada, praise the Ohio exposition as the greatest in which they participate, pointing out that every conceivable precaution is taken to protect their herds as well as the total purses which are offered in this division, approximately $57,000.

This year, with some 200 head of Brown Swiss cattle entered, the Buckeye state will provide the largest show in its history for this breed, entries falling far short of this mark in other years.

In the car-lots division of cattle, there are 550 heads entered this year in comparison with 290 a year ago.

Reason why breeders are attracted to the Ohio State Fair can best be answered by the prizes offered in the division which make up the livestock show: cattle, $26, 218.61; draft horses, $10,399; sheep, $10,037.50 and swine, $9,988.

For more than a week trucks loaded with hay, straw, corn, oats and other grains have been moved onto the grounds and a corps of workmen engaged in bedding down the stalls to receive the animals immediately upon their arrival on the grounds.

After the show comes to a close many breeders will move on to further conquests in other state fairs, but when next year's premium lists are off the press, they will be back for their big effort in the toughest competition imaginable.

As war clouds gather again over uneasy Europe these six men stand ready to lead their nations' armies in the conflict—if it comes. Should a general European war break out, most likely some of these men, outstanding soldiers themselves, would find themselves pitted against the military skill of the others. Two are the military leaders of the Rome-Berlin axis powers—Colonel-General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, and General Alberto Pariani, Italian chief of staff. Directing military operations on the other side of a European war most probably would be found

Major General Viscount Gort, chief of the British imperial staff; General Marie Gustave Gamella, French chief of staff; Inspector-General Edward Smigly-Rydz, chief officer of the Polish army, with General Boris Shaposhnikov, chief of staff of the Russian army, uncertain.

It is easy enough for one member of most any family to have a certain date for a birthday, and that is not anything unusual, but when three members of the same tribe have chosen the same day of the month on which to be born, that's something different and news. Esther Wallen at Hook's Corner, according to her own statement, will be old enough to cast a legal ballot on and after this next September 6th, and her brother Leonard, in Duval territory, on this same date will be even 28. And the least one, a little niece of the two mentioned, Mary Lou Slick, will be having her first birthday on this same day. And then's when a real birthday party is to be held, so they told us.

adjournment rush was the introduction of a bill that may be one of the hottest issues of next year's session. Introduced by Representative Lee E. Geyer, militant California New Dealer, the measure would abolish all poll taxes. It is aimed chiefly at Southern states, where the poll tax system predominates. . . . Gordon Dean, crack former press chief of the Justice Department, recently transferred to the Anti-Trust Division, is burning the midnight oil preparing the Government's appeal from the decision throwing out the indictments against the American Medical Association. . . . "Pensions or Penury", a small book written by California's Senator Sheridan Downey, has been made an official publication by the Townsend movement.

RUNNER-UPS

Representative Gene Cox of Georgia, who hates minimum wages but has a $56,300 "take" for himself and nine relatives, is the undisputed czar of congressional nepotists, but he has two ambitious rivals in the Senate.

Running close behind for high nepotism "honors" are "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina, who also opposes 30 cents an hour for mill workers; and Burton K. Wheeler, Montana's veteran White House aspirant.

In number of jobs, Smith is right on Cox's heels, though his total "take" is lower. Wheeler has "cropped behind in pay items, but all of his jobs pay well and run up an impressive total in dollars.

IOWA TANGLE

One of the first jobs awaiting the President when he returns to his desk is unraveling an Iowa political tangle that threatens to tie the Democratic leaders of the State into knots. The politicians are split into three warring factions and unless Roosevelt takes a firm hand a big explosion is inevitable.

PASTOR OF EVANGELICAL CHURCH AT CONFERENCE

The Rev. S. S. Davis, pastor of Calvary Evangelical church, and C. A. Bolender, church delegate, went to Columbus Wednesday to attend the 102nd annual Ohio conference of the Evangelical church in Miller Avenue church. The conference lasts through Sunday with the assignment of pastors to be made Sunday afternoon. About 400 pastors and laymen of churches from throughout the state will attend the conference.

The United Brethren church, is attending conference at Lancaster this week. It is a guess, a sure we think that he will be returned to this charge.

have quietly joined forces to back a slate of delegates pledged to the President. Opposing this are Senators Guy Gillette and Clyde Herring. Gillette still ranking over the purge attack on him last year, has not said publicly, but secretly favors Garner or another conservative of his stripe.

Herring has not yet shown his hand, but privately he is just as strongly against Roosevelt or a man of his choice as Gillette. Herring's secret strategy is to get a delegation pledged to himself as a "favorite son" candidate, which would place him in a powerful position to horse-trade as he saw fit at the 1940 convention. Gillette is willing to play ball on such an arrangement and behind the scenes is supporting Herring's maneuver.

For home consumption, Herring also is claiming he has the ear of the White House. But it's not very much of an ear. In the inner circle he is rated just as much a foe as Gillette.

In the third corner, trying to play all sides to his own interest, is Secretary Henry Wallace and his corps of political tight-rope walkers.

Publicly, Wallace talks Roosevelt, but privately he is trying to grab the Iowa delegation for himself. In this effort he is secretly flirting with the Herring-Gillette entente while at the same time professing to be on good terms with Utterbach and Birmingham. All are aware of what Wallace is up to, and he knows they are wise to him. But he continues to play what he and his managers consider "smart politics."

New Dealers, who have never forgiven Wallace for his pussy-footing in last year's bitter purge fight, are furious over his antics. While Harry Hopkins and Attorney General Murphy are quietly working with Utterbach and Birmingham for a Roosevelt delegation, Wallace is backing and filling while angling for the deal with Herring and Gillette.

The inner circle wants to call in Wallace and crack the whip. Unless the President does step in and bump heads, a big blow-up is certain.

STATE'S RULING HITS MARSHALS IN OHIO TOWNS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 23—Town marshals may not go outside village limits to find traffic law violators without a warrant, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert held today in an opinion to Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the state highway patrol.

Black said in his request for the opinion that the practice exists in certain parts of the state. Village marshals make deliberate patrols outside their villages for the purpose of making arrests and taking the offenders to any court in the county they desire, Black said.

Marshals can, however, arrest traffic violators within the village limits and take them before a mayor of any other village in the same county, Herbert said.

Because SOHIO SUPREME so greatly exceeds the minimum specifications for an "Ethyl" gasoline, we have discontinued the sale of SOHIO Ethyl. ### STRUTTING AND SHOOTING

THERE has been going on this month, abroad, what an American calls "the greatest full-dress rehearsal for war in history." About 8,000,000 men are under arms, strutting and shooting and tooting, while a scared continent looks on. The experts are experting and the dopesters are doping and the dictators are peering from the wings and giving orders.

"All the world loves a parade," it is said. At least, if the paraders are carrying our flag and not the other fellow's. But it is probably safe to guess that most of the 8,000,000 men in these camping and marching parties would rather be at home, getting in their crops and playing with their children and planning to add a wing to the house next year.

The redeeming feature about this war rehearsal is, perhaps, that the players are shooting away so much ammunition. And if they are marched around enough in bad weather, and forced to eat enough bad grub, and ordered and kicked around enough by their officers, these vast armies of presumably normal men may go back home tired of their outing and fed up on war, whether in play or earnest.

SPEED

MODERN man accomplishes miracles of speed, but pays a high price for it. The wreck of that $2,000,000 streamlined train in Nevada, with its terrible toll of dead and injured, is the latest practical comment on this subject. There has been a sad series of fatalities in the air, too, lately. And the personal toll of automobile victims goes on steadily.

All this in the name of efficiency and time-saving. In many ways it is good, enabling people to live richer and fuller lives and accomplish more. But most of the speeding seems to be for sheer satisfaction of overcoming time and space.

Something is to be said for that too. The birds and animals fly and run for fun as well as need. But if we were candid about it, we would probably admit the excuses we give for our speed mania are mostly false.

We are in a terrible hurry to get somewhere and then don't know what to do with ourselves when we get there. We breed a race of people who are content only with motion and change, who live externally and objectively and have no inner life, no stability, no repose.

The Japs, who say it was the President alone who killed that treaty, are kidding themselves.

It just might happen, too, that there would be an outbreak of peace in Europe.

It's time somebody applied an ax to the European Axis.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Representative Joseph W. Martin of North Attleboro, Mass., hasn't been much advertised yet as a 1940 Republican presidential possibility, but his friends are inflating a boom for him, and it may prove to be a very sizeable one.

Outside New England undoubtedly he'll require considerable introducing to the rank-and-file of voters. Professional politicians, however, already know all about him. He's strong in G. O. P. ranks on Capitol Hill. Members of the Republican congressional committee swear by him. He'll have their help in recommending him to the bulk of the electorate. And they have had onto a year publicize him. That's time enough in which to provide a suitable man with a formidable buildup.

Martin isn't without a substantial foundation either. He's in his eighth term in the house of representatives, and he's performed very creditably there, at least from his own party's standpoint.

And in the current (76th) congress he's been the Republican minority's house leader. This is a job of importance. John N. Garner established his political reputation as Democratic minority house leader. To be sure, Martin hasn't been a minority leader as long as Garner was. Nevertheless he's raised particular hedges with the New Deal majority in the six months of his minority leadership. Additionally, he'll have three of four months next Winter, in which to raise pluperfect further hedges. By convention time, 1940, he probably will have raised plenty of it, and will be recognized as a distinguished hedges-raiser.

ABLE AND LIKABLE

Martin's an able bird and a likable one.

He's kept his Republican following solidly together. Maybe that wasn't so difficult; minorities generally are cohesive. But he also has appealed successfully to the anti-New Deal Democrats, thus knocking into pi most essential pieces of New Deal legislation. The New Deal's disorganized; everybody's aware of that. Joe Martin's management had a lot to do with disorganizing it. He even has made capital out of President Roosevelt's decision to change the date of Thanksgiving Day. It sounds ridiculous, but votes hinge on it.

Joe's geography isn't overly good—not central enough. Still I've talked with western Republicans who are willing to waive that point.

His age is o. k.—55. He's a newspaperman—the press likes him.

He has most of the qualifications for the nomination. Election's different, perhaps.

DEWEY? VANDENBERG? TAFT?

Dewey leads on all the straw polls—but decreasingly. The complaint seems to be that he's a "glamor boy," nationally inexperienced.

Then Vandenberg! All right, but he doesn't 100 percent register. No signs of widespread enthusiasm for Taft.

What frets the Republicans is that they don't appear to have a corker to lead their 1940 ticket. They need somebody NEW, to get up a wild yell of en-tous-lism. Is Martin a possibility?

Dewey? Questionable. Vandenberg? Rather flat. Taft? Flatter. Martin? He might turn the trick.

Gosh! How the Republicans wish that Borah were a quarter of a century younger! Well, how about Martin? Borah-ites are boosting for him.

ANGRY CONVICTS' CELLS UNLOCKED

WASHINGTON—The Justice Department has been trying to keep it a secret, but when Frank Murphy, forthright Attorney General, visited Alcatraz some time ago, every cell was unlocked.

As Murphy walked down the cell-block, he was greeted first with absolute silence. Then as he passed, a quiver of rage went through the penitentiary. Men pounded on their bars, spat into the aisle, howled and cursed. They did not know who Murphy was, but they always show their resentment against any visitor.

What they also did not know was that their cells were unlocked. This happened by accident. It was the noon hour, at which time they file down to the dining-room. The cells are unlocked simultaneously by an automatic time signal, and in this case the time signal had unlocked the cells but the bell, waiting for Murphy to finish his inspection, had not rung.

Thus with the bell silent, the convicts did not know that they could have rushed into the corridor. There was nothing to restrain them.

Murphy came out of Alcatraz with his soul stirred at the hardened, hopeless attitude of the prisoners. That was why he startled Washington with his statement that the penitentiary should be abolished.

Murphy's belief is that no man should have all hope removed. Once he reaches that stage he is like an animal. Without radios, reading material or communication with the outside world, Alcatraz prisoners, he feels, might as well be dead.

HOOVER'S CHOICE

Herbert Hoover, who has been getting about the country much more and holding more quiet meetings with key political people than most people think, has come to some definite conclusions about state governors.

He has looked over most Republican governors, and the two who rate highest in his opinion are Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio and Governor Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut.

Of the two, he rates Baldwin as the abler, in fact, as the ablest governor in the country. However, he doesn't think Baldwin has a ghost of a chance for 1940, while, of course, Bricker has. Hoover puts Bricker emphatically ahead of Taft.

Hoover is inclined to think that Governor Bricker may be the best Republican bet for 1940, but he isn't advertising that fact from the house-tops as yet.

NOTE—Baldwin is Connecticut's first Republican governor in eight years. After taking office, he immediately proposed the elimination of jobs which "no longer justify their cost", together with salary cuts and the drastic reduction of relief costs. Baldwin was one of five Republican governors who attended the New York banquet to hear Hoover's Lincoln Day address this year.

DIET AND HEALTH

Defending Child Against Typhoid

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

TWO DISEASES, once dreaded scourges, have now almost disappeared. One we have discussed—diphtheria. The second is typhoid fever.

To anyone born after 1910, the world is a very different place in the late summer or fall of the year. He misses what the older generation took as a matter of course—reports of typhoid in the neighborhood. Here, there, everywhere over a city were reports of cases of fever in children and young adults.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Nobody was safe, except those who had had the disease. Nobody was safe because everywhere drinking water or milk was contaminated, or food was contaminated by flies. The water looked all right; it smelt all right. Nobody could tell good water from bad water. The farmer would show a glass of water from his well. It sparkled in the sunshine—clear as crystal. No taste, no odor of stagnation. No, sir—nobody could tell him that was infected. Yet, there were maybe a case or two of typhoid in his own family from drinking that very water.

Great Reduction

In 1905 there were nearly ten thousand deaths from typhoid fever in the United States. In 1933 there were 248.

The first great step in preventing typhoid, as well as other dysentery diseases, was to filter the drinking water. In 1893, Robert Koch, the great bacteriologist, was asked to determine why cholera was prevalent in Hamburg, when a neighboring city, Altona, was free of outbreaks. Both cities are located on the river Elbe and both used its water for drinking. The skeptics thought that if cholera and typhoid were water borne, as the bacteriologists insisted, both cities should have the same incidence.

Koch was not content with showing that Altona's water was filtered while Hamburg's was not. He isolated cholera germs from the Elbe. Then he showed that they were present in the water mains of Hamburg, but not present in the mains of Altona. Then he clinched the argument by showing that the microbe was absent from the filtered water of Altona, but present in the unfiltered water.

Due to Control

There is no doubt that the greatest reduction in typhoid incidence is due to municipal and public health control of the water and milk supply. But we cannot rely on this. Exposure occurs in many ways. The New York Health authorities have often warned against bathing in the contaminated waters around New York. The typhoid bacilli lurk in various places and many slips occur which allow typhoid to get into the drinking water or food. In Montreal, in the summer of 1927, the raw milk was allowed to be distributed without adequate pasteurization. Over 5,000 cases of typhoid developed in six months.

The only sure method of prevention is for each person to acquire individual immunity by typhoid vaccine. Three doses are given at about five-day intervals. School children should especially have this protection.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. A. C.: "Please give some information about mucous colitis—cause and best diet for it."

Answer: Mucous colitis is a complicated condition in which there are attacks of diarrhea with cramps and passage of tough mucus. The causes are the physical build of the body, nervous constitution and dietary errors. Those with mucous colitis cannot stand an ordinary mixed rough diet. Cathartic addition is a frequent contributing factor. In treatment, the diet should be smooth. My friend, Dr. Horace Soper, of St. Louis, recommends in his excellent treatise on Clinical Gastro-Enterology—high vitamin foods, such as fruit juices, tomato juice, etc. But diet alone will not cure these cases. Any form of self-treatment is liable to be unsuccessful.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendingen has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendingen, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Constipation and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diarrhea," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

In such an event, the underlead of the ace merely prevents the defenders from getting any trick at all in the suit.

Perfectly natural bidding got South into 4-Spades on this deal. He opened with 1-Spade, North bid 2-Hearts, South 2-Spades, North 3-Spades and South 4-Spades.

West was very much on the spot to find a good lead, or at least so he thought. He didn't like to lead spades, hearts or clubs, because of the kings in the suits. As it turned out, the lead of any one of those suits would have given the declarer a trick and beaten the defenders out of one.

West's only question therefore was regarding which diamond he should lead. This particular West decided to lead his fourth best and as a consequence, declarer made game, losing no tricks except to the three kings. It is hard to think of a better illustration than this hand of the reason why, if a non-bid suit headed by an ace is led against a suit bid, the card chosen should usually be the ace.

SYNOPSIS
LORENA HAMILTON has come to Arizona to visit her uncle GEORGE BRAZEE, owner of Phantom ranch, whose leading cowboys are JERRY DALE, college-bred newowner, who is fascinated by Lorena, and SHOT ROGERS, who finds himself in love with her.

YESTERDAY: Lorena proposes to scout around with Shot that night in an effort to trace the movement of Escobar's men, diverting suspicion by her presence.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

"OF COURSE, Lorena, I know you are just teasing. But—"

"No."

"—but I wish you wouldn't, about this. Ending this cattle thievery is too serious to make fun about, and—"

"I am not teasing. Shot, I meant just what I said." Lorena spoke rather vehemently, there under the moon. "Now stop looking at me as if I were somebody's sister and it was time to be put to bed! Just because you are tall and strong and win prizes for broncho busting and marksmanship doesn't mean you are so much older than I—so there! I know about you. I have inquired from Aunt Sally. I am almost as old as you are, young man!"

"Why, Lorena, I—"

"I guess you think a girl is a helpless little creature, good only as an ornament."

"Lordy," said Shot.

"I can even out-talk you—see?" she smiled at him and he was close enough to see her pretty teeth in the moonlight and to detect the delicate perfume of her again. "Seriously, this is a modern era, Mr. Shot Rogers. Women are quite capable of caring for themselves. Most of us, at least."

"I reckon you got me there, all right. I still marvel how you escaped from the Mexicans that first day, Lorena. My lordy, don't you know all the folk hereabouts are bug-eyed about you? I hear the men talking. They figure you have spunk!"

"Do you think I have spunk, Shot?"

"Why, of course! I wouldn't like you if you didn't have!"

"Then you'll stop trying to baby-girl me. We'll ride into the hills and have a try at locating Luis Escobar. I—I need revenge on him, anyway."

"There's not much you can do with a girl like that, Shot realized. You can't make her take a polite 'no,' and you can't use any physical force. You just have to give in and hope for the best."

Secretly, Shot Rogers was delighted. He despised the simpering, helpless, clinging type of girl.

There had been one year and a half ago at Blanco. She tried to make Shot her protector, and tried to use whatever sex lure she possessed to involve him and capture him. And while she had been pretty in a pesty sort of way, he had soon felt a reaction of disgust, especially at himself for letting her trick him. She had thrown her arms around him at a Blanco dance and he had hugged her a minute. Then he got mad at himself and went off and got drunk for the first time in his life, and sobered up to be more disgusted at himself for getting drunk. When Lorena Hamilton came along, she had brought a freshness and difference in personality showing brilliant contrast to the other girl.

"Do you see a ghost, Shot?" Lorena asked. "You're just staring out at nothing. And after all, this is Phantom ranch, on Ghost river."

"I was thinking," said he, simply.

"Can we start out tomorrow, maybe?"

"You know it would be dangerous as h—awful dangerous, Lorena. Four men have been killed, not counting the two we got Wednesday night. I reckon they were ambushed. George has told his own cowboys not to venture out too far toward the south, near the line, unless they are in groups."

"Are you afraid?" she looked up at him.

"Now, Lorena!"

"I'm sorry. Of course I know you're not. But I do think we would have to dodge any spies, first of all."

"What do you figure about spies? You think Escobar has—has—?"

"Has spies right here on Phantom ranch, Shot?"

The tall young cowboy stared hard at her, not in surprise, but in deep interest.

"Have you seen something to make you suspicious, too?" he murmured.

"Why do you say 'too'? Were you already suspicious?"

"Without much good reason. Just a hunch."

"I think mine was just a hunch also, Shot. I—honestly, I'd rather not voice it until I'm sure. It might be awfully unfair."

"I been milling a plan around in my head since we come out here tonight," he said. "Listen here—suppose tomorrow morning I whisk the boys hired to fight Escobar, the fellows I'm supposed to be leading, and we all high-tail it out again with a lot of talk and such. Then you quietly see who's listening in if you can, and see if anybody slips off like they might be going to carry the word to Escobar's outfit. Hunh?"

"All right! It's a start, anyway, Shot."

Wherefore Shot Rogers came back to the ranch house at about 9 o'clock that Sunday night with Lorena, and announced rather loudly to George Brazee and several other persons there that the 11 armed scouts would depart at dawn tomorrow on their second expedition into the hills. There was some discussion. The scouts themselves were called up from the bunkhouse and a conference held there on the Brazee front porch.

They agreed to ride to a place called the Hump, a landmark suggesting the back of a camel, and swinging in a wide arc from there to the westward, hoping to pick up some sign of Escobar's band. They knew the Hump was near the Mexican-American border line. George Brazee warned them against going much south of there, lest they face political repercussions.

Jerry Dale took part in the talk. But this young man was noticeably subdued since the difficulty at the dance the night before. The discomfiture on his face served as an advertisement of the blow he had received, and he was sensitive about it. But he managed not to miss any discussion that went on around the place that Sunday.

When the conference ended, Lorena edged Shot Rogers away to a private place and spoke to him anxiously.

"That was a mistake!" she whispered. "You have talked out the plans here before everybody. I saw all the hands coming up to listen. The Phantom cowboys, your men, even the three Mexican servant women and their families, Shot!"

"It doesn't matter, Lorena. In fact, that's just what I had in mind. I noticed them all there, too. Naturally everybody's interested."

"But it does matter, I tell you. They know all your plans now. If there is a spy, he can start early tonight and tell Escobar that you'll be at the Hump before noon tomorrow, and that you will be leading your men on a searching party around that spot for two or three days."

"Sure he can. In fact, I hope he does take that word to Escobar."

"For goodness sake, why?"

"Because we ain't—aren't going to be at the Hump. You and I are the only ones that know it, but we are going to leave here toward the Hump—then turn and ride right smack east, in the opposite direction! On the east stretch of the Phantom range, Lorena, are grazing George Brazee's fattest, most tempting cows. That's where Luis Escobar will come, if he shows up at all!"

STRUTTING AND SHOOTING

THERE has been going on this month, abroad, what an American calls "the greatest full-dress rehearsal for war in history." About 8,000,000 men are under arms, strutting and shooting and tooting, while a scared continent looks on. The experts are experting and the dopesters are doping and the dictators are peering from the wings and giving orders.

"All the world loves a parade," it is said. At least, if the paraders are carrying our flag and not the other fellow's. But it is probably safe to guess that most of the 8,000,000 men in these camping and marching parties would rather be at home, getting in their crops and playing with their children and planning to add a wing to the house next year.

The redeeming feature about this war rehearsal is, perhaps, that the players are shooting away so much ammunition. And if they are marched around enough in bad weather, and forced to eat enough bad grub, and ordered and kicked around enough by their officers, these vast armies of presumably normal men may go back home tired of their outing and fed up on war, whether in play or earnest.

SPEED

MODERN man accomplishes miracles of speed, but pays a high price for it. The wreck of that $2,000,000 streamlined train in Nevada, with its terrible toll of dead and injured, is the latest practical comment on this subject. There has been a sad series of fatalities in the air, too, lately. And the personal toll of automobile victims goes on steadily.

All this in the name of efficiency and time-saving. In many ways it is good, enabling people to live richer and fuller lives and accomplish more. But most of the speeding seems to be for sheer satisfaction of overcoming time and space.

Something is to be said for that too. The birds and animals fly and run for fun as well as need. But if we were candid about it, we would probably admit the excuses we give for our speed mania are mostly false.

We are in a terrible hurry to get somewhere and then don't know what to do with ourselves when we get there. We breed a race of people who are content only with motion and change, who live externally and objectively and have no inner life, no stability, no repose.

The Japs, who say it was the President alone who killed that treaty, are kidding themselves.

It just might happen, too, that there would be an outbreak of peace in Europe.

It's time somebody applied an ax to the European Axis.

World At A Glance

Representative Joseph W. Martin of North Attleboro, Mass., hasn't been much advertised yet as a 1940 Republican presidential possibility, but his friends are inflating a boom for him, and it may prove to be a very sizeable one.

Outside New England undoubtedly he'll require considerable introducing to the rank-and-file of voters. Professional politicians, however, already know all about him. He's strong in G. O. P. ranks on Capitol Hill. Members of the Republican congressional committee swear by him. He'll have their help in recommending him to the bulk of the electorate. And they have hard onto a year publicize him. That's time enough in which to provide a suitable man with a formidable buildup.

Martin isn't without a substantial foundation either.

He's in his eighth term in the house of representatives, and he's performed very creditably there, at least from his own party's standpoint.

And in the current (76th) congress he's been the Republican minority's house leader. This is a job of importance. John N. Garner established his political reputation as Democratic minority house leader. To be sure, Martin hasn't

WASHINGTON—The Justice Department has been trying to keep it a secret, but when Frank Murphy, forthright Attorney General, visited Alcatraz some time ago, every cell was unlocked.

As Murphy walked down the cell-block, he was greeted first with absolute silence. Then as he passed, a quiver of rage went through the penitentiary. Men pounded on their bars, spat into the aisle, howled and cursed. They did not know who Murphy was, but they always show their resentment against any visitor.

What they also did not know was that their cells were unlocked. This happened by accident. It was the noon hour, at which time they file down to the dining-room. The cells are unlocked simultaneously by an automatic time signal, and in this case the time signal had unlocked the cells but the bell, waiting for Murphy to finish his inspection, had not rung.

Thus with the bell silent, the convicts did not know that they could have rushed into the corridor. There was nothing to restrain them.

Murphy came out of Alcatraz with his soul stirred at the hardened, hopeless attitude of the prisoners. That was why he startled Washington with his statement that the penitentiary should be abolished.

Murphy's belief is that no man should have all hope removed. Once he reaches that stage he is like an animal. Without radios, reading material or communication with the outside world, Alcatraz prisoners, he feels, might as well be dead.

HOOVER'S CHOICE

Herbert Hoover, who has been getting about the country much more and holding more quiet meetings with key political people than most people think, has come to some definite conclusions about state governors.

He has looked over most Republican governors, and the two who rate highest in his opinion are Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio and Governor Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut.

Of the two, he rates Baldwin as the abler, in fact, as the ablest governor in the country. However, he doesn't think Baldwin has a ghost of a chance for 1940, while, of course, Bricker has. Hoover puts Bricker emphatically ahead of Taft.

Hoover is inclined to think that Governor Bricker may be the best Republican bet for 1940, but he isn't advertising that fact from the house-tops as yet.

NOTE—Baldwin is Connecticut's first Republican governor in eight years. After taking office, he immediately proposed the elimination of jobs which "no longer justify their cost", together with salary cuts and the drastic reduction of relief costs. Baldwin was one of five Republican governors who attended the New York banquet to hear Hoover's Lincoln Day address this year.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Greeting a group of visiting law students, Senator Henry F. Ashurst, erudite chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, gave them this bit of advice: "Never chew gum while arguing a case before a jury. That's a trick and the jurors are sure to be more interested in it than what you are saying." ... Overlooked in the (Continued on Page Three) been a minority leader as long as Garner was. Nevertheless he's raised particular hades with the New Deal majority in the six months of his minority leadership. Additionally, he'll have three of four months next Winter, in which to raise pluperfect further hades. By convention time, 1940, he probably will have raised plenty of it, and will be recognized as a distinguished hades-raiser.

ABLE AND LIKABLE

Martin's an able bird and a likable one.

He's kept his Republican following solidly together. Maybe that wasn't so difficult; minorities generally are cohesive. But he also has appealed successfully to the anti-New Deal Democrats, thus knocking into pi most essential pieces of New Deal legislation. The New Deal's disorganized; everybody's aware of that. Joe Martin's management had a lot to do with disorganizing it. He even has made capital out of President Roosevelt's decision to change the date of Thanksgiving Day. It sounds ridiculous, but votes hinge on it.

Joe's geography isn't overly good—not central enough. Still I've talked with western Republi-

Defending Child Against Typhoid

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

TWO DISEASES, once dreaded scourges, have now almost disappeared. One we have discussed—diphtheria. The second is typhoid fever.

To anyone born after 1910, the world is a very different place in the late summer or fall of the year. He misses what the older generation took as a matter of course—reports of typhoid in the neighborhood. Here, there, everywhere over a city were reports of cases of fever in children and young adults.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Nobody was safe, except those who had had the disease. Nobody was safe because everywhere drinking water or milk was contaminated, or food was contaminated by flies.

The water looked all right; it smelt all right. Nobody could tell good water from bad water. The farmer would show a glass of water from his well. It sparkled in the sunshine—clear as crystal. No taste, no odor of stagnation. No, sir—nobody could tell him that was infected. Yet, there were maybe a case or two of typhoid in his own family from drinking that very water.

Great Reduction

In 1905 there were nearly ten thousand deaths from typhoid fever in the United States. In 1933 there were 248.

The first great step in preventing typhoid, as well as other dysentery diseases, was to filter the drinking water. In 1893, Robert Koch, the great bacteriologist, was asked to determine why cholera was prevalent in Hamburg, when a neighboring city, Altona, was free of outbreaks. Both cities are located on the river Elbe and both used its water for drinking. The skeptics thought that if cholera and typhoid were water borne, as the bacteriologists insisted, both cities should have the same incidence.

Koch was not content with showing that Altona's water was filtered while Hamburg's was not. He isolated cholera germs from the Elbe. Then he showed that they were present in the water mains of Hamburg, but not present in the mains of Altona. Then he clinched the argument by showing that the microbe was absent from the filtered water of Altona, but present in the unfiltered water.

Due to Control

There is no doubt that the great reduction in typhoid incidence is due to municipal and public health control of the water and milk supply. But we cannot rely on this. Exposure occurs in many ways. The New York Health authorities have often warned against bathing in the contaminated waters around New York. The typhoid bacilli lurk in various places and many slips occur which allow typhoid to get into the drinking water or food. In Montreal, in the summer of 1927, the raw milk was allowed to be distributed without adequate pasteurization. Over 5,000 cases of typhoid developed in six months.

The only sure method of prevention is for each person to acquire individual immunity by typhoid vaccine. Three doses are given at about five-day intervals. School children should especially have this protection.

Worst of All Leads

EXCEPT in cases where special information has been given by the bidding, it is pretty hard to think of any lead against a suit bid which is worse than the underlead of an ace. A large proportion of the time either the declarer or dummy will have a singleton in that suit and also the king. In such an event, the underlead of the ace merely prevents the defenders from getting any trick at all in the suit.

so he thought. He didn't like to lead spades, hearts or clubs, because of the kings in the suits. As it turned out, the lead of any one of those suits would have given the declarer a trick and beaten the defenders out of one.

Jerry Dale took part in the talk. But this young man was noticeably subdued since the difficulty at the dance the night before. The discoloredation on his face served as an advertisement of the blow he had received, and he was sensitive about it. But he managed not to miss any discussion that went on around the place that Sunday.

When the conference ended, Lorena edged Shot Rogers away to a private place and spoke to him anxiously.

"That was a mistake!" she whispered. "You have talked out the plans here before everybody. I saw all the hands coming up to listen. The Phantom cowboys, your men, even the three Mexican servant women and their families, Shot!"

"It doesn't matter, Lorena. In fact, that's just what I had in mind. I noticed them all there, too. Naturally everybody's interested."

"But it does matter, I tell you. They know all your plans now. If there is a spy, he can start early tonight and tell Escobar that you'll be at the Hump before noon tomorrow, and that you will be leading your men on a searching party around that spot for two or three days."

"Sure he can. In fact, I hope he does take that word to Escobar."

"For goodness sakes, why?"

"Because we ain't—aren't going to be at the Hump. You and I are the only ones that know it, but we are going to leave here toward the Hump—then turn and ride right smack east, in the opposite direction! On the east stretch of the Phantom range, Lorena, are grazing George Brazee's fattest, most tempting cows. That's where Luis Escobar will come, if he shows up at all!"

DAFFY IN FORM HURLING FIRST FOR RED BIRDS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 23—Paul "Daffy" Dean was a hero to Columbus baseball fans again today because of his 5 to 4 pitching victory over St. Paul in his first start for the American association Red Birds since he was returned by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dean, who helped hurl Columbus to an association pennant in 1933, and was picked up by the Cards the following year, went the round to win the opening game of a scheduled double header. The second game was called in the sixth with the score tied at 2 to permit the visiting team to catch a train.

Hit safely in every one of the first eight innings, the former St. Louis 'flash' went into the ninth with a one-run lead and set three of the Saints' best hitters down in order to end the game. The twin bill attracted 5000 spectators, the second largest gathering of the local season. The Birds were idle today.

The Kansas City Blues retained their slender lead by defeating the Colonels at Louisville 5 to 3. The second place Minneapolis Millers also won, nosing out the Mud Hens at Toledo 5 to 4.

Indianapolis and Milwaukee split a double header, the first game going to the Indians 5 to 3 and the second to the Brewers, 4 to 3.

GEHRIG GAINS IN FIGHT WITH HIS AILMENT

ROCHESTER, Minn., Aug. 23—Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees was expected to leave the Mayo clinic and rejoin his team in Chicago today after doctors completed a two-day examination of the famous ball player.

Gehrig said he had been told he was making good progress in his fight against a form of infantile paralysis that has cut short his career and forced him to give up active playing.

Dr. H. C. Haine, who has been treating Gehrig, said after the checkup that the former first baseman's condition was "definitely improved." Treatments begun when Gehrig's ailment was first discovered and will be continued the physician, said.

Ambers Regains Title; Henry Blames Thumb

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—"The weight and Ambers' thumb beat me!"

—Henry Armstrong.

"Armstrong fouled me so hard and so often he broke my foul-proof cup"—Lou Ambers, newly crowned lightweight champion.

"The referee should have taken every round from Armstrong on fouls"—Al Weill, manager of Ambers.

"It was just like I warned everybody three weeks ago. We were framed"—Eddie Mead, manager of Armstrong.

There you have the aftermath of the fight right from the dressing rooms immediately after the fight at Yankee stadium.

For a while we weren't quite sure whether we were in the dressing rooms of a couple of pigs or in a court of law because the rival managers were popping off at a great rate on ring etiquette, points of law, chiseling charges and what not.

The post-battle scene of this fight closely resembled that of the one a year ago in that Ambers again was virtually unmarked and Armstrong once again looked like the man who had taken all the beating.

Here comes Ambers into the Yanks dressing room. He is laughing and dancing and we finally make him stand still in front of Red Rolfe's locker.

Fouled Early, Often

"Sure was a tough fight," says Lou, as his brother kisses him.

"Armstrong broke my cup. He fouled me early and often. I don't say he meant to do it, but he sure did it."

"Yeah, he hit pretty good but not as good as last time. I'd learned how to smother his punches in that other fight and I was ready for him this time."

Now for the visiting club's room where we find Henry stretched out on a table, still gasping, and two handlers working over him. (Mead is roaring dire threats in the background as he circles the table.)

Unlike Ambers, who has only a long, but not very deep cut, on his left eye, Henry's two eyes are virtually closed. Both are cut, swollen and emurpured. Blood flecks his lips and nostrils.

"I couldn't help hitting him low because he had been blinded sticking his thumb in my eye like this (business of showing us how Lou did it). I don't say he meant to do it but look at my eyes."

"His thumb would catch my upper lip and rip into an eye. What's that? The weight? Yes, I guess making that weight slowed me down some. I wasn't as fast as I was last time and he was in better shape."

"Maybe I didn't punch as hard. I don't know why. No, my hands didn't bother me. It was a tough fight, yes, I guess it was tougher."

(Mead, roaring at the top of his lungs). "I'm going to take a delegation to see the governor about this boxing commission. Donovan should have penalized Ambers every round for butting and thumbing."

Or, as the immortal Yussell Jacobs once remarked, Mr. Mead might have said: "We wuz robbed." In fact, he did say it in spades.

And, who should we run into out on the field as we headed home but that same erudite gentleman, Mr. Yussell Jacobs, and that other cagy manager of champions, Mr. Hyime Caplin, both of whom had this to whisper in our ear:

"Don't let that Mead or anybody else kid you—Ambers is now both the lightweight and the welterweight champion of the world; he made the weight didn't he? he won, didn't he? So, then, neither contracts, commissions or agreements can change the fact that he fought at both the lightweight and welterweight limits and he won them both."

They may be right at that.

C. A. C. CALLS MEETING TO DISCUSS BOWLING SEASON

An effort will be made Friday evening to line up teams for the bowling season, all interested persons being invited to attend a meeting in the Circleville Athletic Club rooms. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock.

Persons interested in backing an aggregation in the league should be at the meeting.

Robert Campbell, S. Court street, who has managed the alleys for the last several years, has accepted employment at the Twentieth Century alleys in Lancaster. He will maintain the runways and act as assistant manager.

A manager has not yet been employed for the C.A.C. skids.

Ambers Regains Title; Henry Blames Thumb

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—"The weight and Ambers' thumb beat me"—Henry Armstrong.

"Armstrong fouled me so hard and so often he broke my foul-proof cup"—Lou Ambers, newly crowned lightweight champion.

"The referee should have taken every round from Armstrong on fouls"—Al Weill, manager of Ambers.

"It was just like I warned everybody three weeks ago. We were framed"—Eddie Mead, manager of Armstrong.

There you have the aftermath of the fight right from the dressing rooms immediately after the fight at Yankee stadium.

For a while we weren't quite sure whether we were in the dressing rooms of a couple of pugs or in a court of law because the rival managers were popping off at a great rate on ring etiquette, points of law, chiseling charges and what not.

The post-battle scene of this fight closely resembled that of the one a year ago in that Ambers again was virtually unmarked and Armstrong once again looked like the man who had taken all the beating.

Here comes Ambers into the Yanks dressing room. He is laughing and dancing and we finally make him stand still in front of Red Rolfe's locker.

Fouled Early, Often
 "Sure was a tough fight," says Lou, as his brother kisses him. "Armstrong broke my cup. He fouled me early and often. I don't say he meant to do it, but he sure did it."

"Yeah, he hit pretty good but not as good as last time. I'd learned how to smother his punches in that other fight and I was ready for him this time."

Now for the visiting club's room where we find Henry stretched out on a table, still gasping, and two handlers working over him. (Mead is roaring dire threats in the background as he circles the table).

Unlike Ambers, who has only a left, but not very deep cut, on his left eye, Henry's two eyes are virtually closed. Both are cut, swollen and empudded. Blood flecks his lips and nostrils.

"I couldn't help hitting him low because he had been blinded sticking his thumb in my eye like this (business of showing us how Lou did it). I don't say he meant to do it but look at my eyes."

"His thumb would catch my upper lip and rip into an eye. What's that? The weight? Yes, I guess making that weight slowed me down some. I wasn't as fast as I was last time and he was in better shape."

"Maybe I didn't punch as hard. I don't know why. No, my hands didn't bother me. It was a tough fight, yes, I guess it was tougher."

(Mead, roaring at the top of his lungs). "I'm going to take a delegation to see the governor about this boxing commission. Donovan should have penalized Ambers every round for butting and thumbing."

Or, as the immortal Yussell Jacobs once remarked, Mr. Mead might have said: "We wuz robbed." In fact, he did say it in spades.

And, who should we run into out on the field as we headed home but that same erudite gentleman, Mr. Yussell Jacobs, and that other cage manager of champions, Mr. Hymie Caplin, both of whom had this to whisper in our ear:

"Don't let that Mead or anybody else kid you—Ambers is now both the lightweight and the welterweight champion of the world; he made the weight didn't he, and he won, didn't he? So, then, neither contracts, commissions or agreements can change the fact that he fought at both the lightweight and welterweight limits and he won them both."

They may be right at that.

REDS LOSE 4-0 TILT TO PHILS TO RETAIN PAGE

Brooklyn's Victory Over Gashouse Gang Keeps Race On Even Keel

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—The National League race continues hotter than the weather today and Old Sol has the mercury flirting with the century mark.

The Reds ran into a worm that turned vicious in the Phillies who, with young Higbe tossing a five-hitter, blanked the leaders, 4-0.

However, they lost no ground because the Dodgers again obliged by plastering the nervous Cardinals, 8 to 3. The Cards pounded Hugh Casey for 15 hits and finally chased him in the ninth but by that time the Dodgers had put the rollers under Davis, Bowman and Andrews and had the game safely tucked away. Cookie Lavagetto's seventh and Dolph Camillo's 21st homers didn't help the Cards much either.

The Giants also said it with homers by Moore and Demaree to beat the Cubs, 4 to 2, ably abetted by some nifty flipping on the part of Lefty Melton and the Pirates found a soft touch in Fette of the Bees, and breezed, 8 to 2.

The Yanks and Red Sox continued as they were. The Yanks, with Russo elbowing, and five of the hired hands hitting for the circuit, had little trouble trimming the White Sox, 14 to 5, before an S.R.O. crowd of more than 50,000 last night.

Williams, Foxs Hit
 The Red Sox 10-3 daylight decision over the Browns was notable for the 19th homer by Ted Williams and the 33rd by Jimmy Fox. Ted drove in four runs and thus became the first man in either league to drive in more than 100 runs. Quite a feat for a first year rookie, Fox brought his runs batted in mark up to 99.

The Indians night time 6-4 verdict over the Senators marked Bob Feller's 18th victory and by fanning nine he brought his strike out total for the year to 186. The Indians punched six of their eight hits off Chase and Appleton for all their runs in the sixth.

And the Tigers, although out-hit, had little trouble marking up another victory for Tommy Bridges over the Athletics, 9 to 4.

SHORTAGE OF RAIN DAMAGES LATE CORN, GARDEN CROPS IN COUNTY

CRITES STARTS TO HARVEST 10 TOBACCO ACRES

Less Than Quarter Of An Inch Of Moisture Falls So Far In August

Severe damage is being caused throughout Pickaway county by a shortage of rain that has prevailed during the last month.

With rainfall so far this month amounting to only .23 of an inch in Circleville, melon patches, late corn, pastures and garden crops are being heavily damaged.

Normal rainfall for the month is about three inches. During July the rainfall amounted to 3.88 inches. The intense heat during recent weeks, added to the lack of rain, has "burned up" some crops, farmers report.

The drought has heavily damaged the late sweet corn crop. Some field corn planted late and not matured will be damaged. Corn that is matured is drying rapidly and corn cutting is under way in various parts of the county, the cutting season being advanced by the dry weather.

Melon patches and gardens are in need of rain. Drying pastures have reduced milk production.

Harvesting of tobacco on the H. M. Crites farm, south of Circleville, started this week. Mr. Crites, Pickaway county's largest tobacco grower, said the crop is in splendid condition. A large drying shed has been erected this year.

Mr. Crites has 10 acres of tobacco. He planned to have a larger acreage but the drought in the Spring damaged his plants. Next year he expects to have a larger acreage.

The tobacco now being harvested will be ready for market about the first of the year.

MIAMI PAINT

Painters recommend Miami paint because they can give you a better paint job—a paint that will stand the ravages of weather and time—paint that will not peel, or crack when properly applied.

Painters also prefer Miami paint because it goes smoothly—saves time and labor—and also, this is very important, because Miami paint covers more surface than many other paints. See us before you buy.

EUROPE'S CRISIS AIRED

More Than 100 Ships May Be Pressed In Service In Case Of War

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—The United States government today is ready to adopt a series of emergency measures to protect this country from the shock of a war outbreak in Europe.

These emergency steps, embracing the evacuation of Americans now in European danger spots, as well as protection of the nation's domestic economic structure, were reported to have been reviewed at an extraordinary conference late yesterday at the state department.

Briefly, the United States government is prepared to take the following action immediately upon outbreak of hostilities in Europe: 1—Utilization of a fleet of more than 100 government-owned passenger and cargo vessels to assist in evacuation of American residents and tourists from war areas; 2—Control of the nation's stock exchanges and commodity markets to prevent a financial panic; 3—Assembling of congress to reconsider the neutrality question; 4—Maintenance of an ample treasury cash reserve to protect American interests abroad, and 5—Attuning of the national defense program to safeguard American neutrality.

High Officials Present Indicating that the administration's grave concern over the turn of European events, high-ranking officials of the state, war, navy, treasury and justice departments assembled for the emergency meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles.

The conferees included all the government chiefs whose function it is to frame war-time policies. Among those present, in addition to Welles, were Acting Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes; Acting Secretary of War Louis Johnson; Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison; Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold; Army Chief of Staff George C. Marshall; Chief of Naval Operations Harold Stark; and Daniel W. Bell, principal fiscal officer of the treasury.

While none of the conferees would discuss details of the meeting it was learned that it was called to safeguard American interests and American neutrality in the event of war.

Prior to the meeting state department officials discussed with the maritime commission plans for evacuating Americans from Poland and other danger zones.

Special Ships Ready The commission, it is learned, is ready to utilize more than 100 vessels now operated by four government-owned shipping lanes—

Glamorous Team

ROBERT Taylor, whose love scenes with such luscious ladies of the cinema as Garbo, Joan Crawford, Margaret Sullivan and Myrna Loy have made him somewhat of an expert on the subject, is reported to reach a new romantic high in his love scenes with the alluring Hedy Lamarr in the current "Lady of the Tropics," headline attraction of the Cliftona theatre starting Sunday. It certainly is good work—and he's getting it!

ROTARY OFFICIAL TO MEET LOCAL CLUB'S OFFICERS

Joseph W. Fichter, of Oxford, governor of this district of Rotary International, will come to Circleville Wednesday evening for a conference with officials of the Circleville club and address the club at the luncheon meeting Thursday noon.

Mr. Fichter will meet with club officers, members of the board of directors and chairmen of committees on matters of administration and club activities Wednesday at 6:30 p. m.

The district governor is a member of the faculty of Miami university and lecturer of the Ohio State Grange. He is a member of the Rotary club at Hamilton. Mr. Fichter was elected governor of the 159th district at the 30th annual convention in Cleveland last June.

The America-France, the American-Hampton Roads-Yankee, the Oriole and the Pioneer lines. This fleet would supplement the regular private shipping facilities.

According to the state department estimates, approximately 100,000 Americans currently are in strategic European areas. Strict regulation of securities and commodities trading on the nation's markets is called for under the emergency plans. Details of the market control program were worked out by the securities and exchange commission shortly before the Munich crisis last year.

President Roosevelt is expected to conclude his northern vacation cruise by the end of this week. While away from the capital he has been kept advised of the European developments via naval wireless. The President recently announced he would call congress into session to consider neutrality legislation immediately on outbreak of war.

Presence of treasury leaders at yesterday's conference reported by was for the purpose of outlining their department's plans in case an emergency develops.

SHORTAGE OF RAIN DAMAGES LATE CORN, GARDEN CROPS IN COUNTY

CRITES STARTS TO HARVEST 10 TOBACCO ACRES

Less Than Quarter Of An Inch Of Moisture Falls So Far In August

Severe damage is being caused throughout Pickaway county by a shortage of rain that has prevailed during the last month.

With rainfall so far this month amounting to only .23 of an inch in Circleville, melon patches, late corn, pastures and garden crops are being heavily damaged.

Normal rainfall for the month is about three inches. During July the rainfall amounted to 3.88 inches. The intense heat during recent weeks, added to the lack of rain, has "burned up" some crops, farmers report.

The drought has heavily damaged the late sweet corn crop. Some field corn planted late and not matured will be damaged. Corn that is matured is drying rapidly and corn cutting is under way in various parts of the county, the cutting season being advanced by the dry weather.

Melon patches and gardens are in need of rain. Drying pastures have reduced milk production.

Harvesting of tobacco on the H. M. Crites farm, south of Circleville, started this week. Mr. Crites, Pickaway county's largest tobacco grower, said the crop is in splendid condition. A large drying shed has been erected this year.

Mr. Crites has 10 acres of tobacco. He planned to have a larger acreage but the drought in the Spring damaged his plants. Next year he expects to have a larger acreage.

The tobacco now being harvested will be ready for market about the first of the year.

MIAMI PAINT

Painters recommend Miami paint because they can give you a better paint job—a paint that will stand the ravages of weather and time—paint that will not peel, or crack when properly applied.

Painters also prefer Miami paint because it goes smoothly—saves time and labor—and also, this is very important, because Miami paint covers more surface than many other paints. See us before you buy.

EUROPE'S CRISIS AIRED

More Than 100 Ships May Be Pressed In Service In Case Of War

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—The United States government today is ready to adopt a series of emergency measures to protect this country from the shock of a war outbreak in Europe.

These emergency steps, embracing the evacuation of Americans now in European danger spots, as well as protection of the nation's domestic economic structure, were reported to have been reviewed at an extraordinary conference late yesterday at the state department.

Briefly, the United States government is prepared to take the following action immediately upon outbreak of hostilities in Europe:

- 1—Utilization of a fleet of more than 100 government-owned passenger and cargo vessels to assist in evacuation of American residents and tourists from war areas;
- 2—Control of the nation's stock exchanges and commodity markets to prevent a financial panic;
- 3—Assembling of congress to reconsider the neutrality question;
- 4—Maintenance of an ample treasury cash reserve to protect American interests abroad, and
- 5—Attuning of the national defense program to safeguard American neutrality.

High Officials Present

Indicating that the administration's grave concern over the turn of European events, high-ranking officials of the state, war, navy, treasury and justice departments assembled for the emergency meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles.

The conferees included all the government chiefs whose function it is to frame war-time policies. Among those present, in addition to Welles, were Acting Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes; Acting Secretary of War Louis Johnson; Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison; Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold; Army Chief of Staff George C. Marshall; Chief of Naval Operations Harold Stark, and Daniel W. Bell, principal fiscal officer of the treasury.

While none of the conferees would discuss details of the meeting it was learned that it was called to safeguard American interests and American neutrality in the event of war.

Prior to the meeting state department officials discussed with the maritime commission plans for evacuating Americans from Poland and other danger zones.

Special Ships Ready

The commission, it is learned, is ready to utilize more than 100 vessels now operated by four government-owned shipping lanes—

ROTARY OFFICIAL TO MEET LOCAL CLUB'S OFFICERS

Joseph W. Fichter, of Oxford, governor of this district of Rotary International, will come to Circleville Wednesday evening for a conference with officials of the Circleville club and address the club at the luncheon meeting Thursday noon.

Mr. Fichter will meet with club officers, members of the board of directors and chairmen of committees on matters of administration and club activities Wednesday at 6:30 p. m.

The district governor is a member of the faculty of Miami university and lecturer of the Ohio State Grange. He is a member of the Rotary club at Hamilton. Mr. Fichter was elected governor of the 159th district at the 30th annual convention in Cleveland last June.

the America-France, the American-Hampton Roads-Yankee, the Oriole and the Pioneer lines. This fleet would supplement the regular private shipping facilities.

According to the state department estimates, approximately 100,000 Americans currently are in strategic European areas.

Strict regulation of securities and commodities trading on the nation's markets is called for under the emergency plans. Details of the market control program were worked out by the securities and exchange commission shortly before the Munich crisis last year.

President Roosevelt is expected to conclude his northern vacation cruise by the end of this week. While away from the capital he has been kept advised of the European developments via naval wireless. The President recently announced he would call congress into session to consider neutrality legislation immediately on outbreak of war.

Presence of treasury leaders at yesterday's conference reportedly was for the purpose of outlining their department's plans in case an emergency develops.
